The Lexicon Institute of Media & Advertising is committed to making a difference in the field of media and communication and has been working with industry and academic experts to create a rigorous and updated curriculum. It is also in talks with several global media schools for fruitful partnerships that will add value to the student's understanding of the media and communications field. The emphasis on industry-academia relationships will mean interactions with industry experts, guest lectures, industry visits, internships, and placements are going to be de rigueur.

Renaissance University

The philosophy that we at Renaissance University believe in is "To create Nation Builders". Time is changing. India is marching ahead to become a Superpower. Credulously, Education is going to play an important role in it. Every progress has an education as a base. Be it any profession, it all emerges through a teacher and the education he/she imparts. Also the core concept of creating Great Humans, who are Great Professionals is very important.

At Renaissance University, our philosophy is to resuscitate Education in such a way that it in turn creates professionals with human touch and none of the denominations eclipse the other.

Renaissance, as the name suggests, is innovation. We believe in the ever existing scope of newness and innovation and are committed to serve the same to our students, who in turn will do the same to our Great Nation. We acquaint ourselves with the philosophy of Nation Building. We know it is not one man or one nation who can do it all. We need togetherness.

At Renaissance University, we wish to create professionals who believe in oneness of the world, who have outstanding exposure to this world, who think globally, who think big. It is very important to think out of the box and to think out of the boundaries. Our philosophy hence is to create well exposed, deep thinkers and true nation builders.

Animela

Animela is an initiative by the Aniverse & Visual Arts Foundation (AVAF). It is India's first International Animation, VFX, Gaming, Comics & XR Festival to showcase Indian talent and garner international business.

The vision is to promote talent and exhibit world class films created by independent filmmakers, animation studios, students and enthusiasts and give them industry recognition.

Frameboxx is proud to be the premium sponsor of Animela.

FUNDAMENTALS OF PRE PRODUCTION

Mitali Jain
HOD Pre Production

Pre-production is an important part of animation, as it sets up the visuals and storyline of the project. It is essential to creating a great, successful end result and making sure all elements are in place for a smooth production process. Pre-production involves outlining the entire animation, writing the script, creating storyboards, developing character designs and developing backgrounds.

ANATOMY

Anatomy in pre production animation is essential for making sure characters are consistent and properly proportioned in a project, whether it be for a television series, film, or video game. This can range from sketching out poses of characters to make sure their skeleton structure is accurate and natural looking, to mapping out the parts of the body on 3D models to be maneuvered in the computer.

Anatomical features like muscles, joints and skin must all interact realistically with movements like walking and running to create believable animation - understanding anatomy helps better achieve this goal. Animation creators also need to consider how different weights will affect physical actions when animating as well; if a character's chest is larger than its legs then they won't be able to run as fast as someone who has them balanced. Knowing anatomy makes it much easier to make sure everything looks right.

CHARACTER DESIGN

Character design is an essential part of the creative process, allowing artists and writers to collaborate on the look, feel, and inner workings of a project's cast. Through this step characters gain personality traits that make them feel real to their audience - giving them life far beyond a single chapter or episode.

Character models are typically built through sketches and other references, often combined with concepts from multiple sources to create visually captivating results. Animators have a wide range of tools to choose from that can help bring three dimensional life to these paper designs while keeping screen size limitations in mind; making sure any model they build will look good no matter if it is projected on a small TV or a big cinema screen.

STORYBOARDING AND CAMERA ANGLE

Storyboarding and camera angle in animation are key components of the animation process. They not only help you create a visual story, but also allow you to convey emotion, action and mood. Storyboarding is the process of planning out how your animation will be shot, scene by scene.

Camera angles are used to help create focus and movement within each shot while still communicating the intended message or emotion. A wrong angle can mess up the overall production so it's important to pay close attention when choosing which one to use for each scene. The possibilities are endless but the right angle could make all the difference in an animated movie or show.

INDUSTRY NEWS

DreamWorks Animation Releases MoonRay as Open Source Software

MoonRay is DreamWorks' open-source, award-winning, state-of-the-art production MCRT renderer, which has been used on feature films such as How to Train Your Dragon: The Hidden World, Trolls World Tour, The Bad Guys, the upcoming Puss In Boots: The Last Wish, as well as future titles.

MoonRay was developed at DreamWorks and is in continuous active development and includes an extensive library of production-tested, physically based materials, a USD Hydra render delegate, multi-machine and cloud rendering via the Arras distributed computation framework.

WildBrain to acquire the Toronto Animation Studio 'House of Cool'

House Of Cool specialises in pre-production and early planning on animated series and features. Its series credits include What If...? for Marvel Studios; Gravity Falls for Disney; Maya And The Three, The Magician's Elephant, Trollhunters, and Dragons: Race To The Edge for Dreamworks and Netflix; and Pretzel And The Puppies for HarperCollins Productions and Apple TV+.

WildBrain will acquire full ownership of House of Cool, with $5.25m ($3.86m) in cash and rest through issuance of shares.

Kitbash3d and Epic Games partner to bring photorealistic asset library to Fortnite creators

KitBash3D has partnered with Epic Games to bring the entire KitBash3D library to Fab, Epic's new unified creator marketplace launching later this year. Fab will provide digital content creators a destination to discover, share, buy, and sell digital assets.

10,000+ digital assets are coming to Fortnite creators via Fab, Epic's new creator marketplace, now available in its Alpha Version.

NVIDIA and Adobe Partner on New Generative AI Tools

The tech companies will co-develop generative AI models with a focus on deep integration into Creative Cloud applications like Photoshop, Premiere Pro, and After Effects, as well as the NVIDIA Picasso cloud service, for content creators, designers, and marketers.

Adobe introduced Adobe Firefly, the company's new family of creative generative AI models, and unveiled the beta of its first model focused on the generation of images and text effects designed to be safe for commercial use.
